I think that <sup>Gr</sup>question of <sup>Lex</sup>longing or <sup>Lex</sup>shorting of the school holidays <sup>Gr</sup>are very <sup>Lex</sup>not one-sided. I think that school holidays that we have nowadays are pretty good. The only thing I would like to do is to <sup>Lex</sup>expand the New Year holidays with one more week.

I know that very <sup>Lex</sup>big school holidays would <sup>Lex</sup>make bad for pupils' studying but I am sure that expanding the New Year holidays with one more week won't <sup>Gr</sup>be late bad on the learning process and even there may be <sup>Gr</sup>good effect on the pupils' studying.

<sup>Gr</sup>the leisure activities on New Year holidays can be expanded with the Christmas and New Year ~~half~~ special holidays activity. Pupils also could take <sup>Gr</sup>more part with the common activities like playing computer games and going for a walk with each other.

I would also like to write about good influence of expanding the New Year holidays with one more week: pupils and, of course, teachers can take more rest with one more week and be more ready for studying and learning, with that rest pupils and teachers ~~also~~ could <sup>Lex</sup>have <sup>Gr</sup>few more interests, so they will have more interest in studying and learning.

I think that school holidays should be expanded with one more week for the good of pupils and teachers.
